Edeson,2010 Analyses the concept of illegal unreported and unregulated fishing and the international instruments which provide the legal and policy framework to combat IUU fishing Palma Tsamenyi and Edeson University of Wollongong Australia The International Law of Fisheries Douglas M. Johnston,1965 International law of fisherys Treatys The fishery worker Bibliography pp 511 541 Jurisdiction in International Fisheries Law Simone Vezzani,2020 Through the ages international fisheries law has been characterized by a dialectic between flag States and coastal States The institution of the Exclusive Economic Zone marked a milestone in the seaward extension of coastal States powers However it has not brought the expected results and coastal States have to a great extent failed to act as trustees of global fisheries An emerging role in the fight against Illegal Unreported and Unregulated fishing has been played by States in their quality as States of active nationality port States and market States Multiple jurisdictional claims raise a number of complexities relating inter alia to double criminality or respect for legality and ne bis in idem principles in the case of prosecution of fisheries crimes This book investigates the extent and nature of State jurisdiction prescriptive adjudicative and enforcement in fisheries matters and related problems of coordination It also discusses the role of Regional Fisheries Management Organizations in regulating fishing activities in different marine areas and in delimiting the States respective spheres of power The entire investigation is functional to critically assessing to what extent the emergence of a new jurisdictional balance pursues the interests of States acting uti singuli or the general interests of the international community as a whole The International Law of Fisheries Douglas M. Johnston,2023-09-20 All the Fish in the Sea Carmel Finley,2011-08-22 Between 1949 and 1955 the State Department pushed for an international fisheries policy grounded in maximum sustainable yield MSY The concept is based on a confidence that scientists can predict theoretically the largest catch that can be taken from a species stock over an indefinite period And while it was modified in 1996 with passage of the Sustained Fisheries Act MSY is still at the heart of modern American fisheries management As fish populations continue to crash however it is clear that MSY is itself not sustainable Indeed the concept has been widely criticized by scientists for ignoring several key factors in fisheries management and has led to the devastating collapse of many fisheries Carmel Finley reveals that the fallibility of MSY lies at its very inception as a tool of government rather than science The foundational doctrine of MSY emerged at a time when the US government was using science to promote and transfer Western knowledge and technology and to ensure that American ships and planes would have free passage through the world s seas and skies Finley charts the history of US fisheries science using MSY as her focus and in particular its application to halibut tuna and salmon fisheries Fish populations the world over are threatened and All the Fish in the Sea helps to sound warnings of the effect of any management policies divested from science itself The International Law of Fisheries Douglas M.

Making the Law of the Sea James Harrison,2011-04-14 The law of the sea is an important area of international law which must be able to adapt to the changing needs of the international community Making the Law of the Sea examines how various international organizations have contributed to the development of this law and what kinds of instruments and law making techniques have been used Each chapter considers a different international institution including the International Maritime Organization and the United Nations and analyses its functions and powers Important questions are posed about the law making process including what actors are involved and what procedures are followed Potential problems for the development of the law of the sea are considered and solutions are proposed In particular James Harrison explores and evaluates the current methods employed by international institutions to coordinate their law making activities in order to overcome fragmentation of the law making process

The International Regime of Fisheries José A. Yturriaga, 2021-09-27 Until recently the international community failed to adopt either an agreed limit for the breadth of the territorial sea or a satisfactory regime of fisheries in the waters adjacent to the territorial sea This provoked an eruption of unilateral acts by which coastal states extended their jurisdiction towards the high seas The Third U N Conference on the Law of the Sea accepted the establishment of a 12 mile territorial sea and a 200 mile exclusive economic zone While taking into account the non existent rights and interests of the so called geographically disadvantaged states and of states with broad continental shelves the 1982 Convention on the Law of the Sea practically ignored existing rights and interests of habitual fishing states. It maintained the well established principle of freedom of fishing on the high seas but with specific conditions. Dissatisfied with the Convention's regulation of fishing on the high seas, a few states elected to hold a U N Conference on Straddling and Highly Migratory Fish Stocks which adopted the 1995 Agreement for the implementation of the provisions of the Convention relating to the conservation and management of such stocks. Similarly, some of these states like Chile, Argentina and Canada adopted legislation extending their jurisdiction beyond their respective 200 mile fishing or exclusive economic zones. This book explores these events in the historical development of the international regulations of fisheries and concludes with a look into recent developments in the area.

New Knowledge and Changing Circumstances in the Law of the Sea Tomas Heidar, 2020. During the four decades that have passed since the 1982 United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea was negotiated, there has been considerable advancement in the knowledge of a number of important issues addressed in the Convention. Among those issues are marine biological diversity, the continental shelf and deep seabed mineral resources. At the same time, as a consequence of global warming, fundamental changes are taking place in many areas related to the law of the sea. As a consequence of global warming, in particular, sea level is rising globally which may affect baselines, maritime limits and boundaries of coastal States. New Knowledge and Changing Circumstances in the Law of the Sea edited by Tomas Heidar focuses on these critical developments, the challenges they pose to the existing legal framework and the various ways in which States are addressing these challenges.

International Marine Economy Myron H. Nordquist, John Norton Moore, Ronn Long, 2017. International Marine Economy offers contributions from marine experts around the globe on the economic impacts of recent developments in international waters. From the South China Arbitration Award to the Bay of Bengal Case, this text includes important writings on Arctic Shipping and Fisheries, the deep seabed resources and maritime boundary regimes and studies the possibility of a new international agreement regulating the conservation of biological diversity in areas beyond national jurisdiction. Finally, it concludes by considering the challenges and opportunities of whaling in the Antarctic Case, ocean governance issues in Southeast Asia and the exercise of control over foreign merchant vessels and state liability for wrong assessments. This volume offers much needed contemporary commentary from renowned scholars on rapidly evolving maritime topics.

The Changing International Law of High Seas Fisheries Francisco Orrego Vicuña, 1999-03-04. This book examines legal, economic and environmental developments including recent state and international practice.

The New International Law of Fisheries William T. Burke, 1994. The call by the United Nations Conference on Environment and Development for new negotiation to improve conservation of high seas fishing stocks again challenges the capacity of international law to cope with emerging problems. Examining past and current experience, The New International Law of Fisheries considers the revolutionary changes in the international law of the sea that reached their final stages in the 1970s and discusses their impact on state protection and customary law. It focuses upon the 1982

Convention on the Law of the Sea particularly the provisions on the exclusive economic zone where the bulk of world fishing occurs as well as the major international decisions on high seas fishing including driftnets the harvesting of particular species including salmon tuna and marine mammals and the states that occupy coastal areas of national jurisdiction and high seas This new study should be of particular interest to international lawyers interested in environmental law and the law of the sea and to states where fishing plays a vital economic role      Sustainable Fisheries Management and International Law Abdullah-Al Arif, 2021-12-30 This book presents a comprehensive analysis of the legal and policy frameworks for marine fisheries management and examines the efficiency of the institutions responsible for the formulation implementation and enforcement of marine fisheries laws and policies in Bangladesh Sustainable management of marine fisheries is a complex multi dimensional and multi stakeholder process that entails sustainable use of marine living resources and conservation of marine biodiversity Offering a critical analysis to these frameworks that play a crucial role in the conservation and management of fish stocks in areas within and beyond national jurisdiction this book examines inadequacies and implementation gaps in the legislative policy and institutional frameworks that contribute to the unsustainable exploitation of marine fish stocks in Bangladesh It recommends law and policy reform for conservation and sustainable management of marine fisheries in Bangladesh and the Bay of Bengal
