The Innocent Anthropologist Notes From A Mud Hut:

The Innocent Anthropologist Nigel Barley, 2000-08-23 When British anthropologist Nigel Barley set up home among the Dowayo people in northern Cameroon he knew how fieldwork should be conducted Unfortunately nobody had told the Dowayo His compulsive witty account of first fieldwork offers a wonderfully inspiring introduction to the real life of a cultural anthropologist doing research in a Third World area Both touching and hilarious Barley s unconventional story in which he survived boredom hostility disaster and illness addresses many critical issues in anthropology and in fieldwork

Reflections on Fieldwork in Morocco Paul Rabinow, 2007-05 In this landmark study now celebrating thirty years in print Paul Rabinow takes as his focus the fieldwork that anthropologists do How valid is the process To what extent do the cultural data become artifacts of the interaction between anthropologist and informants Having first published a more standard ethnographic study about Morocco Rabinow here describes a series of encounters with his informants in that study from a French innkeeper clinging to the vestiges of a colonial past to the rural descendants of a seventeenth century saint In a new preface Rabinow considers the thirty year life of this remarkable book and his own distinguished career

A Plague of Caterpillars Nigel Barley, 2018-11 When local contacts tipped off Nigel Barley that the Dowayo circumcision ceremony was about to take place he immediately left London for the village in northern Cameroon where he had lived as a field anthropologist for 18 months The Dowayos are a mountain people that perform their elaborate fascinating and fearsome ceremony at six or seven year intervals It was an opportunity that was too good to miss a key moment to test the balance of tradition and modernity Yet like much else in this hilarious book the circumcision ceremony was to prove frustratingly elusive This very failure compounded by the plague of caterpillars of the book s title allows Nigel Barley to concentrate on everyday life in Dowayoland and the tattered remnants of an overripe French colonial legacy In the meantime witchcraft fills the Cameroonian air a man is lied to by his own foot and an earnest German traveller shows explicit birth control propaganda to the respectable tribespeople Beneath the joy and shared laughter in this comic masterpiece lies skilful and wise reflection on the problems facing people of different cultures as they try to understand one another A Plague of Caterpillars is the second in Barley s trilogy of anthropological journeys that began with The Innocent Anthropologist and ended with Not A Hazardous Sport all published by Eland

Dispatches from the Field Andrew Gardner, David M. Hoffman, 2006 Penned by advanced graduate students amidst their dissertation fieldwork these provocative essays capture the challenges and intricacies of that anthropological rite of passage The collections authors frankly portray the mistakes they made in the field their struggle to analyze the events unfolding before their eyes the psychological and emotional frustration seemingly endemic to doing ethnography and the ethical complexities of researching living people The authors present these essays not as models of ideal fieldwork or as a series of lessons about how to overcome potential hurdles one faces in the field but rather as a window into the complexities of being an ethnographer in the contemporary world Against a backdrop of subject populations increasingly informed about global relations of power and more specifically informed about the topography of American imperialism these humanistic essays vividly reflect recent shifts in both the focus and methods of anthropological research as well as the dilemmas underlying the construction of anthropological knowledge They are meant to spark discussion and debate While tailored to an audience relatively new to ethnographic fieldwork and intended as a teaching tool this collection should appeal to anthropologists and ethnographers at all points in their career Back cover Noble Savages Napoleon A. The Invention of Africa V. Y. Mudimbe,1988-05-22 What is the meaning of Africa and being an African What is and what is not African philosophy Is philosophy part of Africanism These are the kinds of fundamental questions that this book addresses V Y Mudimbe argues that the various discourses themselves establish the worlds of thought in which people conceive their identity Western anthropology and missionaries have introduced distortions not only for outsiders but also for Africans trying to understand themselves Mudimbe goes beyond the classic issues of African anthropology or history He says that the book attempts an archeology of African gnosis as a system of knowledge in which major philosophical questions recently have arisen first concerning the form the content and the style of Africanizing knowledge second concerning the status of traditional systems of thought He is directly concerned with the processes of transformation of different types of knowledge P 4 of cover
